YOUTH ROUTE

Co-funded by the European Union

TEAM : _____

COUNTRY : _____

DATE : _____

PURPOSE : Transform daily field observations into structured policy-ready arguments
HOW IT WORKS : For each situation you encouter, move step by step

1 Describe what you see (facts, no, interpretation) → 2 Analyze the system behind it (structural analysis) → 3 Formulate a clear strategic policy argument

FIELD OBSERVATION What I see	STRUCTURAL ANALYSIS Why it happens	POLICY ARGUMENT What should change
Example : I saw three kids sleeping in the park because the shelter was full.	Example : The current housing policy lacks "emergency-low-threshold" beds for minors (Structural Inertia).	Example : We need to reallocate 5% of the housing budget to youth specific emergency beds to prevent long-term homelessness (The PSA Triad).

GUIDING PROMPTS

1. FIELD OBSERVATION

- What did I actually see or hear?
- Who is affected?
- What is repeated or systemic?

2. STRUCTURAL ANALYSIS

- What policy, rule, or norm explains this?
- Where is the structural inertia?
- Who benefits from the current situation?

3. POLICY ARGUMENT

- What is the specific change needed?
- Can I link it to:
  - ✓ funding
  - ✓ KPIs
  - ✓ risk
  - ✓ compliance

TRAINER TIP

Encourage participants to shift from:

"This is unfair."

to

"This creates institutional risk / inefficiency."

Your observations have power. Your analysis creates change.
Use your voice to build better systems for youth!
